TELEGRAMS.

THE SEIZURE OF THE STEAM LAUNCH "STEPHEN THOMPSON."

The following telegraphic message from Canton reached us this evening:—
"Thompson referred Peking. Consul dissenting."

(From the Straits Times.)

PARLIAMENT.

LONDON, November 23rd.

Mr. Balfour's Irish Land Purchase Bill was read a second time, by a majority of seventy-five.

GERMANY.

BERLIN, November 23rd.

The Emperor opening the Reichstag said that his visits to the different Courts of Europe justify the hope that peace will be maintained. He added that no extra military credits are in contemplation.

LOCAL AND GENERAL.

We hear that the Blue Funnel steamer Agamemnon ran ashore somewhere in the Inland Sea, but got off with slight injury soon afterwards.

We note that the P. M. S. S. Co.'s steamship City of Peking will be despatched for San Francisco via Yokohama and Amoy on Saturday the 8th inst at 1 p.m.

MESSRS. Adamson, Bell & Co., agents for the Canadian-Pacific Line, inform us that the steamship Abysinia, from Vancouver, arrived at Yokohama yesterday, and will leave for Nagasaki and Hongkong to-morrow.

As the steamship Mayflower was approaching Singapore on the morning of the 24th ult., says the Straits Times, between Caruman Island and Pulo Sarok, she struck on one of the Coral Reefs in that vicinity. The cargo was immediately trimmed off, and at 10 o'clock, on the tide rising, she floated off, and proceeded on her way to port, arriving at noon. No damage of any sort was done.

At the last meeting of the Iron and Steel Institute the Fifth of Forth Bridge was declared to be the latest wonder of the world. It has only been by the advances made of late in the manufacture of iron and steel, said a speaker, that the construction of such a work has been rendered possible. The structure is to be 2,996 feet long—one and five-eighths miles. Two spans measure 1,710 feet each, and allow 130 feet of clear navigation in 500 feet of the center. The remaining girders are two 680-feet spans, fifteen 168 feet, four 57 feet and three 25 feet wide. The foundation is 91 feet below the water-level, and the height from the bottom is 361 feet.

SAYS the Straits Times—Yesterday, the 22nd ult., was a busy day for Lieut. General Cameron and the Officers of the post, for they were on the move continually from daylight till night. On the night of the 21st instant the enemy was supposed to have taken Fort Serapong and Siloso. At daybreak on the morning of the 22nd the Commandant of Singapore despatched a party to retake these places, the force consisting of two machine guns and squads of Infantry. They made an attack on Fort Serapong and succeeded in retaking it, and capturing therein four nine-pounders. The enemy from Fort Siloso, represented by dummies and screens, posted along the bluff, were then observed to be advancing on Fort Serapong when the R. A. opened fire upon them with the 9-pounders, at first with common shell and afterwards with shrapnell, causing considerable damage to the supposed enemy. The Infantry then took up the fire, and after a sharp engagement the enemy was driven back. After this the Lieut. General visited Fort Passir Panjang, and witnessed practice at moving and standing targets with the 7-inch guns. Towards evening field firing at Telok and Blakan Mati was witnessed. Lieut. General Cameron expressed himself as highly pleased with the manoeuvres, and complimented the Officers and troops highly. To-day the General is holding a general inspection at Fort Canavan and this morning he gave the Officers a general catch-up. Battalion Parade was afterwards held, and then a general inspection of quarters, hospital, etc. This afternoon work at the guns will take place.

A WISCONSIN man has just married his mother-in-law.

We are informed by the agent of the Austro-Hungarian Lloyd's S. N. Co. that the Company's steamer Beronica, from Trieste, left Singapore yesterday for this port.

TO-MORROW morning between 9 and 10.30 o'clock the steam-launch carrying the Bethel flag will call alongside any vessel holding company pennant C, to convey men ashore to 11 a.m. service at St. Peter's Seamen's Church, returning about 12.30.

AN exchange states that at present six paper mills (three of which are at Tokio, one at Kio, one at Kobe, and one at Osaka) are in operation in Japan. Beside these, six others are under promotion. The quantity of paper consumed in Japan in a year is between 18,000,000 lbs. and 20,000,000 lbs.

HUSBAND (who has advertised for a typewriter expert)—Did many call to-day, my dear, in answer to the advertisement? Wife—Yes, quite a number; but there was only one applicant whom I told to call again. He seems very bright, and I'm sure you will like him. Husband—What was the trouble with the rest? Wife—They were all young women.

By kind permission of Colonel D. G. Anderson, the Regimental Band will play in the Public Gardens, to-morrow (Sunday), from 3.30 till 5 p.m. The following will be the programme:—

March, "Merry Minarch".....Scholar.
Overture, "Le Lac des Fées".....Auber.
Valse, "La Lullaby".....Wagner.
Selection, "Rem. d'Orléans".....Gounod.
Valse, "Silver Moonlight".....Strauss.
Selection, "The Maid of the Mill".....Liedt.
JOHN MORAN, Bandmaster.

The following estimate has been made of the average yearly produce of wine in the various wine-producing countries of Europe. The figures represent hectolitres of 22 gallons each:—France, 45,000,000; Italy, 27,538,000; Spain, 25,000,000; Austria-Hungary, 14,000,000; Portugal, 4,000,000; Greece, 2,500,000; Germany, 2,130,000; Southern Russia, 2,000,000; Switzerland, 1,280,000; Servia, 700,000; European Turkey, 600,000; Roumania, 336,335. Thus the total wine produced in Europe fairly may be estimated at 125,084,335 hectolitres, equal to about 2,752 million gallons, which, at six bottles to a gallon, is 16,512 million bottles, or about four dozen bottles of wine to each inhabitant of Europe.

DR. Tanner, who became famous about eight years ago by fasting forty days in New York, has been pursuing investigations into the subject of suspended animation, or counterfeited death. He is convinced that large numbers of people are annually buried alive all over the world, and that, so subtle is the principle of life, no one can undertake to say that it is extinct until decomposition has set in. The doctor is also pursuing another branch of semi-suspended animation, viz. hibernation, and he declares it is possible for human beings to hibernate. He says he is studying with a view to making some experiments in this line, and that the time may come when he may permit himself to be sealed up in an airtight coffin and laid away until such time as he shall designate for it to be opened.

THE "Arizona Kicker" thus cheerfully holds forth in the Detroit Free Press:—"We owe no grudge to Colonel Hastings because he once cruised our ears in the corridor of the Town Hall. We had proved him a liar, a swindler and an abscorder, and he had to cuff to save his reputation. The Colonel is now seeking the nomination for Sheriff, and is promising, in case he is elected, to secure our town a Government appropriation of $250,000 to build a public building. We are actuated only by the kindest motives when we say that the Colonel is a blooming deceiver. He can no more secure a dollar from Uncle Sam than we can borrow one of the hinges from the gates of heaven. All the influence he has in this world of sin and sorrow is confined to the Red Hot Saloon and its crowd of reprobates. Do not be deceived in the castor-oil voice of the Colonel."

The winter session of the University of Edinburgh was opened on October 27th with an address by Principal Sir William Muir in the Synod-hall. There was a large attendance. The Principal began by welcoming the students and congratulating them on their selection of the Marquis of Lethian as Lord Rector. In regard to the University itself, they had to notice a certain diminution in their numbers, especially in the earlier classes of the Faculty of Arts. The decrease was not in itself of serious moment, unless, indeed (which there was at present no ground for apprehending), it should prove to be progressive, as they found the experience of the sister Universities to be more or less the same. There was probably some general cause at work. Various hypotheses had been advanced. It had been suggested, for instance, that the revival of trade was drawing young men more into the paths connected with manufacture and commerce than with the learned professions. None of the reasons yet named, however, could be accepted as decisive, and they must patiently watch the progress of events before coming to any definite conclusion. He expressed his regret that there had been no material progress during the year in the provision of hotels or University houses for the reception of students, with surroundings suitable for quiet and undisturbed study. He trusted that the subject would not lose its interest with them, and that in due time provision might be made for effectually meeting this important want. He then referred to the recent University celebrations at Bologna and other cities on the Continent, and said that in Edinburgh they had not the adventurous aids of military display, the splendour of courtly functionaries, or the new born enthusiasm of Italy—the joy of a freedom freshly found, yet the Edinburgh University tercentenary, in its perfect ordering and splendid success, and not least, he rejoiced to add, in the exemplary attitude of the students, felt that he would venture to say, of none of theivals—indeed, in one respect it surpassed them, and that was in the fact that it had no quarters, hospital, etc. This afternoon work at the guns will take place.

MINISTERS (consoling Mormon elder over the death of his wife)—I sympathize with you deeply, Mr. Brigham, in your sad affliction. Mormon Elder—Ah, yes, it's hard, it's hard! Minister—Still, Mr. Brigham, it isn't as bad as if you—only had one, you know.

THE Singapore Straits Times learns that the resignation by Mr. J. C. Mitchell of the Deputy Registrarship of the Supreme Court here has been accepted by Government, and that the appointment will most probably be given to one of the solicitors in practice in Singapore.

"HAS a mistress no right to go into her own kitchen?" asked the Judge at Woolwich County Court, the other day; and he is described as putting the query in a "surprised" tone. His Honour can "know little about cooks if he does not know that, as a body, they regard "their" kitchen as territory into which their master or mistress has no claim whatever to intrude. "Am I to go the work, or will you? If I am cook, please go out." Thus spoke the Woolwich cook, and it was a typical observation.

THE Straits Times informs us that what very nearly proved a serious accident to Lieut. Protheroe happened on the evening of the 31st ult. As the Lieut. was riding along Orchard Road towards town, a hack gharry, came in the opposite direction at a furious rate, and in trying to pass another gharry, ran into Mr. Protheroe's horse, giving him no possible time or room to escape the collision. Mr. Protheroe and pony were both thrown violently to the ground, the rider very fortunately escaping with only an ugly cut on the head.

ONE of the richest magnates in Christendom the Prince Joseph Schwarzenberg, died recently in Austria leaving an estate of 250,000,000 francs or $50,000,000. The Prince owned immense estates in Bohemia, Austria Proper, Styria, Franconia and Germany, and as he was possessed of a penurious spirit it grieved the old nobleman to hear that his successor would have to pay 6,000,000 guilders as probate tax. Seemingly, as a reflex of his feelings in resolving to get even on this impost, he left to the poor of Weimar, a city in which he was born and bred and lived most of his life, the mere pittance of $500. This munificent (?) bequest was announced to the Municipal Council of the Austrian capital by the son and universal legatee of the deceased in a letter, in which he says that "prompted by the desire of expressing also his personal sentiments and his attachment to his native city, he has given orders to his treasurer to pay over the amount without any further delay." There is not always a full meed of truth in these old feudal maxims, Noblesse Oblige.

THE British Consul-General at Hamburg in his last report refers to the position of the North German Lloyd Line of steamers to the East and Australia. Mr. Dundas says that although the company receives a State subsidy of £110,000 a year, the result of its operations in the direction of Asia and Australia for the last year, the first complete year of its existence, has not been a success in regard to profits. In spite of the subsidy there was a very large deficit. In the course of the year the steamers carried to Eastern Asia and Australia 6,000 tons of goods from Bremen and Antwerp, of which 3,663 tons, of the value of £216,000, went through Bremen. The Consul-General estimates the carrying capacities of the steamers sent to these countries to have been 13,000 register tons, while 6,000 tons weight represent 4,000 tons register, and therefore less than a third of the carrying resources were utilized. Hence it is not surprising that the year's operations should have shown a heavy loss. "At the same time, the first year's operations cannot fairly be regarded as a test of the future, and that the directors do not so regard it is evidenced by the fact of the order placed with the Vulcan works for a new large fast steamer for the Australian line at a greatly increased cost in comparison with the cost of the present boats employed."

"MUCH ado about nothing" should be the motto of the Sanitary Board. Meetings succeed each other, discussion is rife on sanitary topics, grievances are aired, and remedies proposed; yet nothing tangible has so far been carried out to improve the sanitation of the Colony, or to remove the evils which threaten it in the near future. Small-pox, fever and cholera have been amply discussed, but we do not remember having yet heard of a single practical device having been adopted for either prevention or cure. The main efforts of the Board have consisted in studying the primary causes of endemic diseases in the Colony, and attempts are being made at removing them by the introduction of a better system of drainage and sewerage and by the reduction of overcrowding. "We fully concur in the opinion that evils should be removed by their roots; yet we think that it is almost beyond the power of the Sanitary Board to effect a radical sanitary reform of Hongkong. The task of improving our drainage system and of reducing overcrowding will be just as slow as that of promoting the general healthiness of the colony by a well developed system of arborisation. We would have our Sanitary Board framed on the principle embodied in the line—"Act, act in the living present," devoting all their attention to direct means of prevention and cure of diseases. The Board ought to be something like a Dictionary of Medicine. Subjects on hygiene should be as freely discussed there as pure pathology. Residents ought to be given facilities to communicate with the Board and expose such of their grievances as may be open to the public gaze. The reading of an extensive correspondence on sanitary matters would, without greatly tending to elucidate many obscure points, and in many cases, it would be far more interesting to the thinking public than the interminable series of discussions on drain-pipes and other kindred subterranean topics. The Sanitary Board would be an invaluable institution if it were essentially practical, if much of the conventional and dogmatical were struck out of its procedure, and if it directed its main attention to questions of immediate utility, leaving aside theories and vegetative."

THE Fruit Chronicle contains the biography of Adolph Beer, commander of the 3d Austrian Artillery Corps, who died at Laibach this month. In 1866 Beer gained one of the few Austrian successes of that campaign by saving the fortress of Olmütz from falling into the hands of the Prussians. He was the first Austrian Jew to attain the rank of colonel. He had been professor at the military academies of Weissenkirchen and Cracow, and died at the age of 55.

THE report of the British Vice-Consul at Bremen, on the trade of that port for the past year, states that the total imports amounted to £4,328,280, valued at £27,650,046, while the exports were 26,375,800cwt., valued at £25,984,492, the figures in each case showing a considerable increase on the corresponding ones for the previous year. Owing to deficient harvests elsewhere, an unusually good business was done in tobacco, the imports amounting to £2,382,153, while the quantity exported was also large. Similarly the imports of rice, cotton, and petroleum showed marked improvement. The increase in cotton over the previous year was 874,665cwt., valued at £1,162,064, and is mainly attributable to the improved condition of the German spinning industry. The value of the importation into Bremen from China, Japan, and Australia rose from £53,922 in 1887 to £794,117 in 1888, and the exports to those countries in the same period rose from £49,019 to £770,000. On this the Consul-General at Hamburg remarks:—"If these facts and figures are absolutely correct—I say absolutely correct because I think there is a disposition to make the most of things—then they are worthy of the attention of British merchants. These results are said to be the outcome of the working of the Norddeutscher Line of steamers. Bremen is making great efforts to improve its harbour, and large new works are in course of construction there. But the Weser will always be a difficulty and a hindrance to the complete success of Bremen as a large port."

THE French Consul at Mogador, in a recent report describing the arrival in Morocco of the caravan from Timbuctoo, explains how it happens that Great Britain has, as he expresses it, succeeded in securing a monopoly of certain Sudan products, especially gum, and thus in a sense laying a tribute on other nations. In the first place the British have not up to the present moment, at least in Mogador, had to meet any real competition. If such competition ever arises, it will, in order to succeed, have to follow the British system. The English at the time of the arrival of the caravan make, without hesitation, large advances of ready money, to certain Jewish merchants who enjoy their confidence in order that they may buy up all the Sudan products which find a market in Europe. Besides ready money, the representatives of English houses receive cotton goods in considerable quantities, which can easily be exchanged with articles from Timbuctoo. This business is not merely carried on in Mogador; the Jewish merchants often travel into the interior to places where the caravan halts, such, for instance, as Tuzuni and Tendouf. A fight often takes place between them for the goods, but whoever wins or loses in the struggle the produce goes into English hands all the same, and the result for other nations is unaltered—the whole caravan loads go to London. If the merchants of other nations wish to free themselves from the British yoke, says the Consul, they must make up their minds to remit advances in ready cash, or, better still, to send a representative to the spot who can purchase the goods as they come from the interior for money down.

MACAO newspapers are again busy with electioneering topics. As there is to be a general election in Portugal for the re-constitution of the Cortes for the three succeeding years, old priest-ridden Macao has decided upon having its share of the work early next year. Senhor Amaral, the unsuccessful candidate at the last provisional election, has already advanced his claim to the parliamentary dignity, and the Portuguese newspapers published in the Far East in reproducing his letter of solicitation argue well for his success. It being a well known fact that a Portuguese deputy for a colony which is placed in the desperate circumstances of the Holy City, can do nothing whatever to better its condition or brighten its future prospects, it is a standing wonder to us why the colony takes to electing a representative at all, or what other motive beyond personal vanity, can prompt any one to offer himself as a candidate for such an empty honour! We have often advocated the idea that the devil or the Fantan god would be a fit and proper person to represent modern Gomorrah in the Portuguese parliament; failing the candidature of either of these highly respectable personages, we do not see any necessity for the neighbouring colony being represented at all in the Lisbon Cortes. The colony's self-representation in the Far East as a veritable sink of priestly misrule, administrative corruption and general immorality is sufficient in itself to characterise it as the very mockery and contradiction of all respectable colonies. The Lisbon government is both unwilling and unable to raise that distant dependency from its low state of degradation. A babbling deputy, a fool withal, can be of no earthly use in the Lisbon parliament. There is neither money, nor intelligence, nor patriotism enough throughout the whole length and breadth of old Portugal to retrieve the lost glory of antiquated Macao. It was said that the Treaty lately concluded with China would bring about trade and prosperity to that colony. Since the Treaty was ratified, several branches of native trade have ceased to exist in Macao; the fishing junks have transferred their seat of operations to a neighbouring island, and most of the shopkeepers are now on the eve of crossing the "Barrier" and establishing themselves on Chinese territory; the gambling monopolies have diminished in value; and the colony's exchanges have been reduced to its lowest ebb. What can Macao do to retrieve its position with the Government of Peking, and the Government of Peking has threatened and threatened to cut off all trade with the colony.

MESSRS. Russell & Co. inform us that the E. and A. S. S. Co.'s steamer Guthrie left Port Darwin for this port to-day, and may be expected to arrive on the 10th inst.

JUDGE (to prospective grand jurymen)—What is your occupation? P.G.J.—Collector for the gas company. Judge—You are excused. It would be impossible for you to bring in a true bill.

A NEW vessel, the Maifastie, now building in Belfast, has a stern of novel construction, there being twin screws which overlap at the tips, the starboard screw being carried some feet further aft than the other to get clearance.

If this were not written by a woman it would, no doubt, be regarded as a gross libel:—

A worrying woman you never can please,
She'll always unbury and bury at ease,
And with nothing to vex her, she'll worry, no doubt,
Because she has nothing to worry about.

THE Shanghai Courier hears that Mr. Oxenham, H. B. M.'s Consul at Chinkiang, is going home shortly on leave. Mr. Mansfield, at present at Wuhu, will take his place. Mr. Coulthard, now assistant at Hankow, goes to Wuhu as Acting-Consul.

ACCORDING to L'Industrie Parisienne a laundryman in the vicinity of Paris has discovered a very ingenious method of cleaning linen without soap. He uses no soap or lye, nor chlorine, but replaces those substances by boiled potatoes, with which he rubs the linen. This curious process, it appears, is much superior to those hitherto employed, and the worst soiled cotton, linen or silk, cleaned by this method, are made whiter than they could be by the use of an alkali.

THE first public pleasure-boat to be driven by electrical power on the Thames was launched on the 8th October. It is 64 ft. long, 10 ft. beam, and designed to carry eighty passengers, with a mean draught of 22 inches, 121 tons displacement, at six miles an hour, as regulated by the Conservancy bye-law. The electrical machinery and storage being placed below the deck fore and aft, leaves a clear run the whole length of the boat for passengers. In the middle is a handsomely fitted cabin with lavatories, dining table, &c. The boat is owned and was built by Messrs. Immisch and Co., of Malden, Crescent, London.

THE CALEDONIAN BALL.

The earliest, and generally most popular ball of the season—that given by the St. Andrew's Society—was the great event of Hongkong last night. Taken all round 'twas ahead of its predecessors in many ways, which is saying a good deal when one recalls what past years of November have been here. The arrangements were admirable. The decorations were the work of a busy party of soldiers and marines, and as all the resources of the Colony had been taxed for days past to provide pretty and appropriate adornment, the effect was really fine. The Fountain in front of the entrance was wreathed with tinted lights from summit to basin, and across the long veranda was draped the Gaelic welcome "Caid Mille Fàilte," which different guests variously interpreted as meaning "God save Ireland" and the other name of St. Andrew. The staircases and corridors were seasonably bedecked with evergreens, and on the walls everywhere were trophies of arms, interspersed with patriotic mottoes. The whole building—Theatre, Library, and all—had been chartered, and not a detail was wanting to aid to everybody's pleasure—from the preparation of the floors to the concoction of the various brands of refreshment in the refreshment room. There would be at least eight hundred guests assembled at supper-time—not so many ladies as last year, alas! but an unprecedentedly large crowd of naval men. It was amusing to watch the old band of middies—budding admirals—sitting to the supper-room; where their seniors, wouldn't see them, and revelling away like heroes. The Army was fairly represented, perhaps on account of their uniform being more fetching. Among the distinguished visitors were Colonel Crater, Mrs. and the Misses Cameron, H.M. King Marie of Sedang, and the French, German, Spanish, and other Consuls. The opening quadrille was danced by the Hon. P. Ryrie and Mrs. Cameron, Col. Crater and Mrs. Bell-Irving, Hon. J. Bell-Irving and Mrs. Crater, and Col. Anderson and Mrs. Wedderburn. When the pipes began to skirl for the succeeding strathspey the St. George's Room presented an animated scene. Perhaps a score of gentlemen wore the kilt, and most of these, with fair partners whose gowns were looped with tartan, took part in the dance, and that with energy. Some of them were more vigorous than graceful, being scant of breath, but the kindly critics who stood around expressed lively satisfaction at the close. By the way, the pipes came out strong; One was to have been away at Yokohama; the night, but the St. Andrew's Society there changed their mind, and last night no less than three sets of chanters were dragging away the stirring music. It is very hard, when writing accounts like this, not to become tremendously patriotic and poetic—with somebody else's poetry—but we will refrain. We will hazard a prophecy, though, it's a safe one. It is that our tub-thumping contemporary will not be so considerate. But to return to the Ball. The programme was a thoroughly good one, the music as will be seen from the following programme, being as far as possible Scottish:
